The Daily Courant.

Friday, May 7. 1714.

London, May 7.

Yesterday arrived the Mail due from France.

From the Paris Gazette, dated May 12.

Madrid, April 23.

THE King is in perfect Health. Orders are given for sending to the Camp before Barcelona great Sums for paying the Army. 'Tis advised from that Camp, that the Town had been bombarded four Days together, and was very much damnified. A Body of between 3 and 4000 Rebels, commanded by the Marquis del Pual, have retired to St. Laurent, 7 Leagues from the Camp, having been beaten out of the Neighbourhood of Granolles by the Detachments which the Duke de Popoli had sent, and by the Count de Fiennes. They appear frequently on that Side to the Number of 3 or 4000 Men, but betake themselves to Flight when our Troops march against them, or separate of themselves for want of Provisions. The Fleet had for some Days been forced by Stormy Weather to weigh Anchor and stand over to the Westward, but the Wind changing they returned the 12th, and anchored near the Mouth of the Llobregat. During that Interval, the Barceloners caused a great Number of useless Mouths to imbark in above 50 Vessels, which they sent out of the Port for Majorca, to the Intent they might the better husband their Provisions, of which there is great Scarcity in the Town; but we hear that a violent Wind had driven those Vessels towards Sardinia and the Coasts of Sicily.

Versailles, May 11. The 27th and 29th of last Month, and the 2d and 5th of this Month, the King took a Review near Marly of the 4 Troops of Life-Guards and of the Horse-Grenadiers.

The 6th of this Month, His Majesty came from Marly to see the Dutchess of Berry, and then went back again.

The 8th the King saw the Gensdarmes and the two Troops of Mousquetaires pass in Review.

Paris, May 12. The 4th Instant in the Afternoon, the Corpse of the late Duke of Berry was brought from Marly to the Palace of the Thuilleries into the Apartment of the Dauphin; where it was opened and embalmed, and was afterwards exposed under a Mausoleum set all round with Tapers, where all the funeral Honours are rendred to it.

The 9th the Cardinal de Noailles Archbishop of Paris, at the Head of the Chapter of our Cathedral, went to sprinkle holy Water on it. The Chapter of St. Germain l'Auxerrois, that of St. Thomas du Louvre, and of other Churches, have done the like.

The Duke of Orleans has been to perform the same Office, as have also the Princes of the Blood. The Pope's Nuncio and the Ambassadors who are at Paris, have done the like.

The 10th the Heart was carried to Val de Grace, by the Bishop of Seez, his chief Almoner. The Count de Charolois nominated by the King for that Function conducted it, being accompanied by the Duke de Sully.

From the Paris Letter, dated May 12.

Paris, May 12. The Advices from Madrid of the 23d of April tell us, that in the last Letter which the Deputation of Barcelona wrote to the King, they protested in the Name of the whole Catalonian Nation, that they were resolved to sacrifice their Lives and Fortunes for the Defence and Service of his Catholick Majesty, being desirous to transmit to Posterity a new Example of the Zeal and Fidelity of their Nation: But that they besought his Majesty at the same time to maintain them in the Possession of all their Rights Prerogatives and Privileges: Yet this Letter was sent back to them, as was also the former, with this short Answer, that all the Favour they were to hope for, was to be received at Discretion.

According to some Advices from Roses of the 20th, a great Noise of Cannon had been heard towards Barcelona, whence two Deputies were come out to go to Madrid, to make new Instances to the King, for endeavouring to obtain the Conservation of the Privileges of the Catalonian Nation. Mean while the Barceloners are reduced to live upon Garden-Stuff.

There are Advices from Lorrain of the 4th of this Month, which relate, that for three Days abundance of Snow had fallen mixed with Hail, which had done great Hurt to the Fruit-Trees in Blossom, but that the Vines and Corn had not received any Damage. In the mean while the Troops of Horse could not move out of their Quarters till towards the End of the Month, the Grass not being come out enough to subsist them in the Field.

'Tis advised from Cambray the 5th Instant, that the Reform of the Troops which are in Flanders was begun, but that none but the most unpromising Soldiers were disbanded; and that new Carriages were made for mounting the Artillery intended for the Field, when the Forces shall incamp, for what Design is not yet known.

Men are actually at Work to make a Harbour at Mardyke, between Gravelines and Dunkirk, which 'tis said may be kept up at less Expence than was that of Dunkirk.
